

Sollertia is an accountancy business that was established to allow small to medium sized enterprises to benefit from cost effective, adaptable outsourcing of their accounting and finance requirements, at a fraction of the cost of hiring dedicated in-house staff.

Sollertia needed to convey these concepts and market their services to their target market, as well as to develop IT applications that would support their business. Formability were contracted to develop the financial IT applications that could be used as part of Sollertia's online presence.

As Sollertia grew, Formability again assisted in the development of Accounting Express, a comprehensive online accounts service that's completely secure. See www.accountingexpress.co.uk. Written with non-accountants in mind, it is incredibly user-friendly and straightforward to use. Formability built the program interfaces between their main accounting platform and the Internet user.

Managing Director of Sollertia, Andrew Mault says, "We have now worked with Formability over a number of different projects, they have a can do attitude to every thing they do. Their work on Accounting Express was delivered on time and in budget, the portal has created an extension to our key services!"
